Context

This course examines the regulation of domestic and european tourism activities and analyses key current issues arising in the subject area.

It aims to provide students with the understanding and insights required to provide specialised legal and policy advice to the many players in tourism including governments, investors, developers, operators, marketers, special interest groups, local communities and tourists themselves. Therefore the aim of the course is to make students familiar with the concepts, principles, theories and methodologies of tourism law applied to contracts.

The explanations and materials seek to provide our graduates the know-how and basic tools for contracting in a tourism industry environment, always from a legal perspective. The most important and frequent contracts are studied, namely: air transport, accommodation, allotment and tour operation, insurance, package holidays. This course takes place during the second semester of the second year.

The language of instruction for this course will be English. Students taking this course will learn specific economic /tourism-related vocabulary and develop both their productive and receptive skills in English, and therefore acquire further knowledge of the English language
